box for "apply" button I want to add a button with this image to my Google Spreadsheet. The button is large and I want it to be more visible because I want the user to press it. A: The HTML for the button is not as simple as the formula bar; it requires nested tags: Note the use of the aria-label attribute, which gives the link focus: The aria-label attribute on HTML links is one of the requirements for indicating that the user of a Web browser should focus on the link's text (or the user of a screen reader should speak out the link's text). This means that users who are unable to interact with a Web page will be able to understand and follow the link's content. If you want to control the button appearance, you can add styles to the links themselves using CSS: .ss-button--apply, .ss-button--apply-icon, .ss-button--text { /* Your style declarations */ } Q: Anime where the main characters are always wearing the same outfit I'd like to thank anyone in advance who is willing to help! I remember having a TV series I loved watching as a child and I honestly have no idea what its called, for some reason I've only been able to find a photo that kinda reminds me of one of the main characters, she's wearing a straight skirt with some kind of flower pattern on it, and for some odd reason, she's
