utility, allowing users to record video and audio, capture mouse clicks and keystrokes, and take screen shots while providing several tools to synchronize the recording with other applications. Capture can be performed in a variety of formats to meet the needs of both users and developers.

Explanation of capabilities Captura is a powerful desktop capture program designed to capture video and audio files and text strings from the user's desktop. Capturing includes recording mouse clicks and keystrokes, capturing still images, capturing video frames, capturing strings displayed in the windows and capturing screen shots. Capturing can be performed without the mouse cursor or from the X11 cursor, using defined hot keys. Capturing can be performed either on a specific screen window using hotkeys, or on the entire desktop and can be repeated every  $N$  seconds to capture the keyboard and mouse activity, as well as strings displayed in a window. The hot keys, mouse and keyboard events as well as strings displayed in the window are captured and saved in a form of a video file or image file. Capturing is done in the following ways: Mouse clicks and keystrokes are recorded using hotkeys or specified keystroke sequences in the recording window. A single screen image can be captured using hotkeys, any keystroke sequences, mouse clicks or by placing the mouse cursor in a set of coordinates. Capturing can be repeated on a set period of  $N$  seconds. Capturing can be stopped manually or automatically when the user types in a keystroke sequence, using a hotkey or by pressing the Esc key.

Capturing can also be stopped automatically by closing the last recording window.

Capturing can be saved in different file formats such as the following: MP4: Videos with different frame rates and compression formats can be captured. Captured videos can be saved in multiple videos, each of which can have different audio formats. The audio is recorded as either a compressed MP3 audio file or uncompressed WAV file and is saved in the same directory as the video file. Captured videos can be used directly as they are, or can be played directly in a media player. JPG: Captured images can be saved in the current directory as JPG images with the default quality setting. Images can be captured in a full-screen mode or in a set of coordinates.

Captured images can be saved in multiple formats with the same quality settings. PDF: Captured texts can be saved in the current directory
